Claimt. Sworn:

He is a native of America. In 1775 he lived at Kinderhook.

He joined Genr. Burgoyne at Saratoga 1777. Before that time he had never taken any part with the rebels, but kept out of their way. He says he took an oath of Association, with most of the Parish he lived in.

He brought some men to the Army and got a Commission in Jessup's Corps.
He receives half pay as Lt. in Jessup's Corps.

And now resides above Cataraqui.

220 Acres of Land in Kinderhook. His father was a Proprietor in that Patent. He got 100 acres of this at his father's death. Wild Land. He purchased 120 acres for £ 100 some years before the War of John Wheeler. There was no House on it when he bought it.

He had cleared 120 acres and had built a House and Barn. It was worth £ 650. Halifax Cury.

HIS NAME IS ON MR. ANDREY'S LIST.

He had a Negro Wench £ 55 Str., a Horse, 5 Cattle, Grain, Furniture and Farming Utensils, & 4 Stone Swine. All these were lost to him.

Certificate from Peter Van Schasack to Claimt.'s Loyalty & his being in good circumstances.

Wits. Peter van Alstine, Sworn:

Knew Claimt. He was his Neighbour in the County. He was always of avowedly loyal principles. Before he got to Gen. Burgoyne he was obliged to secrete himself in the Woods.

Claimt. had a House of his own. He possessed part of the Patent of Kinderhook under his father's Will. Supposes about 200 acres. A considerable part of which was improved. He had a very good House. The Land was not so good as Witnesses.

He had Stock on his farm, he cannot say how much.

His Lands were in Possession of persons who had purchased them under confiscation.

List of Sheriff's Officers and persons in military, etc., in the Province of Upper Canada, formed from the returns of the said officers in obedience to the orders and regulations contained in a circular letter from the Right Honourable William Windham, one of Her Majesty's Privy Council Secretaries of State to Lieut. Governor John Graves Simcoe dated 12 June 1796. Sharp Sergeant of Royal Rangers and 7 Midland District
Mr. E. C. Burlingame
Bath, Ontario, Canada In 1783 (a b. 1789)

My dear Mr. Burlingame:

I have consulted the Washburn genealogy by Rev.
George Washburn, and also all of other Washburn genea-logies but found no record of Simon, b. before 1741.

In the records of the Reformed Dutch Church of Kinderhook appears the following baptismal record of Gysbert Sharp:

M. 1, 1788. Sept 4, 1788. Gysbert, in direct geboren, son of Laurens Schjerp and Catharintje Schjerp.
Sponsors: Andries Schjerp and Trijntje van Aalen.

A search in such material as we have on the Dusenberry family, and in records of Torrington and Furcuse revealed no record of the birth of John Dusenberry.

Sincerely yours,

Marian S. Wiltse

BENJ. A. SHARP, BOYLSTON, DIES

RETIRED FARMER SUCCUMBS
TO HEART DISEASE

FORMER BLACK RIVER MAN, 79

Native of Town of Leray, Mr. Sharp Moved to Town of Boylston Six Years Ago—His Wife Died in 1934—Funeral From the Home Sunday Afternoon.

Boylston, Nov. 12.—Benjamin A. Sharp, 79, former resident of Black River, died at his home on a farm in the town of Boylston, about four miles from Lacona, yesterday afternoon at 1. Death was caused by heart disease. Mr. Sharp, who had been in poor health about four years, had been ill five weeks.

His wife, Mrs. Jennie Porter Sharp, dropped dead of a heart attack at the farm home near here Dec. 21, 1934. She was 77 years old.

Mr. Sharp was born in the town of Leray, Jan. 12, 1859, a son of Henry and Libby Croan Sharp. His father was killed in action during the Civil war.

On Nov. 23, 1878, Mr. Sharp married Miss Jennie A. Porter. Mr. and Mrs. Sharp resided in Black River until six years ago when they moved to the farm near Lacona.

Mr. Sharp formerly was employed as a millwright in the old Remington Pulp company mill at Black River. After the mill closed he became a farmer until his retirement.

Surviving Mr. Sharp are a daughter, Mrs. George (Jessie) Steele, town of Boylston; a son, Henry B. Sharp, Los Angeles, Calif., and five grandchildren, Carlton Steele, town of Boylston, Mrs. Doris Hand, Harrisville, Kenneth Graham, Watertown, Worth Graham, town of Fine, and Mrs. Ruth Bowers, Chicago.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 1 p. m. Sunday. Rev. Adelbert Edwards, pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist church of Sandy Creek, will officiate. Burial will be in the Calcium cemetery.

So potent is this remembrance that one might say the late king still occupies the throne, for his people continue to think his thoughts and carry out his plans.

Indeed it is so strong that it was responsible, so I am informed by the best possible source, for a weakening during the last two years of the bonds of friendship between France and Yugoslavia long before the disastrous Czechoslovak crisis came along to do vast damage to French prestige. Folk in this part of the world don't forget.

The people will tell you quietly but with cold precision which speaks of deep bitterness that Alexander lost his life because of insufficient protection. And there will come a thing which rankles constantly and grows, the fact that the conspirators haven't been executed but are serving prison terms. The Serb demands an eye for an eye in this case.

If you want to get the full force of this feeling go with me across the great public park on the heights above the winding Danube to the ruins of the grim old fortress which still frowns out across the valley as though it really thinks its ancient bones have a fight left in them. There in the military museum we shall see an exhibit of such stark realism as to bring one up with a jolt.

Carefully preserved is every shred of the bullet torn, blood stained clothing which His Majesty wore when he was shot down. Laid out at full length in a glass case is his uniform, even to the once white collar with its terrible tale of violence.

There is the scarred motorcar in which he was riding. The discolored cushions repeat the tragedy.

All about are other mementoes of the king, his various uniforms, a sports suit on a figure, innumerable decorations, a favorite rifle, an ornate but useful looking automatic pistol, pens, and even some memos which he had scribbled.

Throughout the day crowds linger about this exhibit. I saw a woman moaning in a state of collapse near the glass case.

From the museum we motor some 60 miles through a lovely rugged countryside to Oplenac. Here is the white marble church of St. George containing one of the world's most striking displays of mosaic art—a mausoleum of City dropped off almost to a standstill. The crash of the chartered DC-4 plane, operated by Curtiss-Reid Airtours Ltd. of Montreal, was the worst in Canadian aviation history.

The plane carried 14 Roman Catholic clergymen, twelve from Quebec dioceses. Many of the laymen were leading Quebec Catholics, chosen by their parishes for the pilgrimage because of their zeal in church work or their piety. Others had won the trip to Rome in church-sponsored benefits and lotteries.

Among those on the plane was Antoine Dussault, $45-a-week manager of the Caisse Populaire (Credit Union) in Quebec's Saint-Sauveur parish. Dussault hesitated to accept because he has four small children and his wife is expecting a fifth. In the end, his wife persuaded him to go. She was baking apple pies for his homecoming when she learned of the crash. Arthur Pelletier, an officer of a Catholic labor union at St. Gregoire, was chosen for the Rome trip by the union members. He left a widow and seven young children behind him.

Audience in the Vatican. Farmer Alphonse Michaud and his wife, whose 19 children were the model family of Plessisville parish, also joined the pilgrimage. After the crash, 17 of the children (two daughters who are nuns were absent) knelt before their parents' pictures in the farmhouse parlor to recite the Rosary.

The pilgrims' plane, apparently off course in the fog and rain, had slammed into 8,500-ft. Mont Obiou, near the French city of Grenoble. It was only 85 miles from Mont Blanc, Europe's highest peak, where 48 persons had died in an Air India crash ten days before (TIME, Nov. 20).

French Alpinists who climbed the mountainside to bring the bodies down found the snowy slope littered with pictures of the Pope and cardinals. Several of the passengers had been writing in their diaries as they flew northward, describing the papal audience that morning which had caused a four-hour delay in their departure. "We are still entranced . . . We sang the Ave Maria," they wrote. "Now we are going through the unknown."

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Unrest in the Colonies

When the time came last week for Richard Baycroft to be sworn in as assessor and building inspector for the village of Dawson Creek, B.C., he took a hard, unsympathetic look at the oath required by provincial law: "I do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to His Majesty King George VI . . ."

That kind of language, Baycroft decided, was "un-Canadian." He told the astonished town fathers that he would swear allegiance to "the Canadian flag, the Canadian government, or Canada as a country," but never to a "foreign king." This week, as he looked for another job, Nationalist Baycroft still insisted that "Canada by now should be able to stand on her own two feet."

ALBERTA

The Boy Who Did

One of a farm boy's classic daydreams is to win the blue ribbon at the fair while all the grownups stand around in frustration and awe. Last week it really happened to twelve-year-old William Roderick ("Ricky") Sharpe, of Munson, Alta., at the Toronto Royal Winter Fair. Ricky was hailed as the world's champion wheat grower.

Of 54,000 Canadian youngsters in the Junior Grain Clubs of Canada, Ricky was the first junior farmer to win a major award in the 28-year history of the fair. In the tradition of all the best dreams, Ricky got the news one morning at school in Alberta, during an arithmetic lesson. He was carried triumphantly around the schoolyard on the shoulders of friends to the cheers of his classmates, and got the rest of the day off to shake hands with everybody in town.

After Ricky won the junior grain championship at the Toronto Fair last year, he really got down to work. His father gave him three acres of the best quarter-section on the family's 500-acre farm. On it Ricky planted a third-year Marquis wheat sample, agonized through the early summer drought and threats of frost in August. Early in September Ricky gathered his grain in bundles with his mother's help, threshed it by hand with flailing sticks. For three hours every night Ricky spread the wheat out on his mother's kitchen table a few kernels at a time, hand-picked the choice specimens, and polished them by shaking them over & over in a silk stocking. When his sample placed only fifth in the district junior farm contest, Ricky did more culling and polishing, replaced most of the sample with better grain before sending it off to Toronto and victory.

Last Saturday in Toronto, Ontario's

Minister of Agriculture Tom Kennedy made the 30-mile trip in from his farm especially to welcome Ricky and his parents at the station. That afternoon, slim, brown-eyed Ricky Sharpe dressed in a blue serge suit, went with five adult award winners to get his $100 award and the champion's big silver trophy. Said Lord Digby, president of the Royal Agricultural Society of Britain: "In spite of all our efforts, England can never produce enough wheat for her own consumption and it is to Canada, the most famous wheat-producing country in the world, and to fine farmers like Ricky Sharpe, that we must look for help."

After he banks his award check, Ricky wants to go on being a farmer "just like Dad." Champion Sharpe's advice to would-be champs: "You've got to do a lot of hard work."

THE PROVINCES

Across the Land

¶ The Bureau of Statistics, adding up the totals on Canada's bumper 1950 wheat crop, estimated that it amounted to 462 million bushels, an increase of 95 million bushels over the 1949 harvest and 17% better than the Canadian average for the past ten years.

¶ Sam Carr, who once served as an agent for the Communist spy ring uncovered in Canada in 1945, had a new assignment. In Kingston Penitentiary, where he is serving a six-year term for passport fraud, Carr was appointed to the editorial staff of the prison newspaper.

¶ In a speech to the French-Canadian Education Association in Ottawa, Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier urged French Canadians to learn English. "Our constant and daily relations with our English-speaking compatriots make it necessary for us to speak English with equal facility," Chevrier said. "It would be foolish to ask our youth to neglect the study of this language at the risk of ruining their lives."

¶ Officials in the Northwest Territories reported the development of a new type of wolf trap designed to reduce the wolves' heavy toll of reindeer and other game in the Far North. The device consists of a cyanide cartridge covered with a tuft of fur that has been scented with fish or seal oil. Although wolves are normally too wary to be fooled by a man-made trap, their curiosity is aroused by the fishy odor and the harmless-looking fur. When a wolf bites at the tuft, the spring in the cyanide cartridge goes off, squirting the deadly poison into the wolf's mouth.

¶ Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born publisher of the London Daily Express, predicted in Toronto that a third world war would be averted, then wryly recalled that he had made a similar hopeful forecast before the outbreak of World War II.

¶ Because of the rising value of the unpegged Canadian dollar, the International Air Transport Association announced a 6% cut in transatlantic air-travel fares when paid in Canadian funds.

Symington could see no point in signing the long-term Canadian contract. Said he: "Just because you want to buy a book doesn't mean you have to join the Book-of-the-Month Club."

Spadework for Peace

Arthur Redpath Menzies, East Block careerman, left Ottawa last week to head Canada's mission in Tokyo; at 33, he is the youngest Canadian ever appointed to a comparable job. If Japan and Canada were formally at peace, the mission would be an embassy, and Menzies' title would be ambassador.

Menzies succeeds Author and Orientalist Herbert Norman, who reopened the mission after World War II and did the preliminary work of re-establishing Canadian political and economic relations with Japan. The process of economic regrowth has been impressive: at the present monthly rate Canada will import more than $20 million worth of goods from Japan next year, or some five times as much as she did in 1938, the last full prewar year.

Since the mission at Tokyo is Canada's only full-fledged diplomatic establishment between Vancouver and New Zealand, Australia and India, it is responsible for gathering Ottawa information not only about Japan and Korea but about the whole Far Eastern area; its chief will necessarily provide important guidance for Canada's future Far Eastern policy. Menzies' other main job: spadework on the eventual Japanese peace treaty. One clause which Canada especially wants in the treaty is a firm binder on Japan to observe all international fishing agreements in the Pacific. Japanese fishermen consistently broke the prewar agreements.

On this tour of duty, Arthur Menzies will be seeing Japan for the second time. The son of a United Church missionary to China, he studied for five years at the Canadian academy in Kobe. With a University of Toronto B.A. and a Harvard M.A., Menzies joined the Department of External Affairs in 1940, has been in charge of its Far Eastern division since 1946. He believes that the Canadian mission in Japan can bring a helpful detachment to the peace conferences, and hopes that the peace treaty can be drafted in the next few months. Says Menzies: "We Canadians are far enough removed from the bitterness of the last war to work out a sound peace."

Silk-Hat Racket

Along with untaxed liquor and cigarettes, the Canadian government's courtesies to foreign diplomats in Ottawa include freedom from the import restrictions imposed in 1947 to save U.S. dollars. Result: more than a few sharp-witted diplomats have become under-the-tea-table dealers in expensive American cars.

The deal was perfectly legal. The diplomat merely had to keep the car one year before putting it up for sale—and making a profit ranging up to $5,000 on a Cadillac or Packard. The practice seemed to be most conspicuous among the Latin Americans and cocktail partygoers who were the least attentive to their bills from local merchants. One embassy with twelve staff members on diplomatic status was widely rumored to be maintaining no fewer than 13 Cadillacs, including one ostensibly owned by the doorman.

The Canadian government winked at the practice for three years, but its patience finally ran out. Last week the External Affairs Department politely advised the capital's 214 diplomats that the minimum term for possession of an imported car before it could be sold in Canada would be extended to two years. Experts on such things guessed that this alone would not kill the traffic, since buyers might still feel that a two-year-old Cadillac was better than none. But the clover days are probably numbered for quite a different reason: early in 1951 the government hopes to remove the import restrictions that made the racket possible.

QUEBEC

End of a Pilgrimage

Before sunrise one morning last week, the telephone tinkled in the Vatican apartment of Pope Pius XII. The Pope, who was about to step into his chapel for Mass, answered the call himself. It was his private secretary, Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, with a message of tragic urgency: an airliner carrying Canadian Holy Year travelers home from Rome had crashed in the French Alps, killing all 58 aboard.

Pope Pius wept; his Mass was delayed until the 74-year-old Pontiff recovered from the shock.* He prayed for the dead, then told his secretary to send messages of condolence to the victims' families wherever possible.

Crowds in the Churches. In far-off Quebec, where news of the crash got around late at night, churches reopened their doors to receive crowds flocking in to pray. Street traffic in downtown Quebec

* Vatican historians likened the disaster to an occurrence during the Holy Year of 1450 when a team of horses ran away on Rome's Sant' Angelo bridge, setting off a panic and crush in which 176 pilgrims were killed.

QUERY No. 1

Sharp-Clark.

On the 8 June, 1809, Rulip (Roeloff, Ruliff) Clark, of Ernesttown Township, made his will. It was not probated until 22 Oct., 1829, by Cornelius Sharp, of Adolphustown. In his will Clark mentions

1. His wife, Alletcha (in Dutch), Alithea (in English) widow of a Mr. Sharp.
2. His step-son, Cornelius Sharp.
3. His step-son, Laurance Sharp.
4. His step-daughter, Catharine Sharp.
5. His step-daughter, Emetche Sharp, married to a Vanauler.
6. His brother, William Clark, living in U. S., with an eldest son.

A Cornelius Sharp, who died 16 Mar., 1863, aged 83, and is buried in a Ernesttown cemetery, is likely the step-son, above noted. This Cornelius is stated as having married a Phoebe Clark, daughter of Rulip, above. The census of 1851, for Ernesttown, lists them as Cornelius Sharp, farmer, born in U. S., aged 70 years.

Phoebe Sharp, " Can. East, aged 45 years.

Laurance Sharp, " do " 15 years

(I think the Can. East should be Can. West, i.e., Ontario.)

A Cornelius Sharp was a Loyalist settler in Ernesttown in 1784. This man must have been born at least in 1760-5, and I believe him to be the first husband of Alletcha, and the father of the step-children mentioned in the will.

If you have the New York Genealogical & Biographical Record, or other material dealing with these families, such as a family history of the Sharps or Clarks of Kinderhook, would you please see if you can identify them?

There is also another Sharp whom I should like to identify. He is Guisbert or Gilbert Sharp. He was the son of Laurensd Sharp, ~~born~~ baptized Oct. 30, 1710, and who married Cathalynta. Gilbert was bapt. 5 Mar., 1739, at Kinderhook. He married 13 Nov., 1869 Alsbart (Alabata, Bata) Van Alner (Van Alen). I have the baptism of their several children at Kinderhook.

I have three copies of the N. Y. Genealogical & Biographical Record. They are July & October, 1950, and April, 1951. They contain, in serial form, a genealogy of the Van Alen family. For instance, in the July issue, page 182, is a note on 156, Bata Van Alen, who married a Johannes Scherp, and who came to Canada as Loyalists. Johannes and Gilbert were first cousins. As Gilbert also married a Van Alen, I am hoping that you can find such a reference to him. If so, I should greatly appreciate a copy of what it says about them.

I am hoping that the Rochester Library has a genealogy of the Sharps. I have never found one, at least one of any length, and have been hoping that one was in existence.
